The Committee on the Status of Women \(\mathbb{V} \mathbb{O} \) Smet monthly during AY 20134 to discuss, assess, and addressues affecting wome(and all) faculty at UAF. The following highlight this year's committee acomplishments.

Women Faculty Luncheon

On 3 October, 2013CSWhostedUAF's ninth annualWomen Faculty LuncheonThe luncheon was webstreamed for faculty who could not participaterson. Over 00 women faculty participated. Our keyne speaker was Doon Braddock, UAFormer Dean of the College of Natural Science and Mathematics, and Interim Director of the UA Press. Braddock's address focused on her reflections of her personal and professional history, and how other women faculty can determine their own strategies for achieving balansuccendsDr. Braddock's insightfuaddress was followed by a brief activity that encouraged luncheo participants to map out at least one of their-firear goals along with the actions and resources required achieve them. They then discussed their goals with the other faculty sitting at their tables.

SeveralUAF dignitaries were in attendance, and all were sincerely acknowledged for their support. Notably, to honor of Disability Employment Awarenesst Mannational campaign that strives to encourage fair and high quality-Wierkenvironments, with a commitment to breaking down social and physical barriers that can impede Auchensellor Rogers and Vice Chancellor Sfraga were participating indayldisability experience. Chancellor Rogers was in a manual wheel chair, and Vice Chancellor Sfraga donned vision-impairing glasses. This effort to promote awareness was a perfect complement to the mission of the Women's Faculty Luncheon where particips were encouraged to consider the complexity of their lives, and to initiate a conversation of balance, goal achievement, and quality of life.
